MISS EDMANDS AT LAKEWOOD

Richeson's Former Fiancee Said to be Hiding in Jersey

IS STILL DEVOTED TO HIM

Writes Daily and Cannot Be Persuaded to Forget Him—Public Will Be Excluded from Trial When It Is Held Next Month.

Boston, Dec. 29.—Secluded in an isolated house just outside of Lakewood, N. J., it is reported, Miss Violent Edmands, the former fiancee of the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, is awaiting the trial of her minister sweetheart.

It was asserted yesterday that Miss Edmands was in New York doing settlement work; but yesterday it leaked out that she was there only a few days, leaving for New Jersey.

Miss Edmands and Richeson planned after their marriage to spend their honeymoon at Lakewood, but instead of being with her husband Miss Edmands is recuperating from the ordeal of Richeson's arrest and Richeson is in the Charles street jail here accused of the murder of Avis Linnell. Every day since his arrest, Miss Edmands has sent the accused man a message of hope.

While Richeson has been lying in his cell incapacitated since his attempt at suicide, his courage has been buoyed by letters from the woman he was to have married on October 31.

During the few days that Miss Edmands remained in her Chestnut Hill home following the arrest of the Rev. Mr. Richeson, she professed confidence in his innocence. Not even after she left to seek rest did her love falter and her letters continue to reach the prisoner.

For a brief time Miss Edmands sought refuge with friends in New York, but several weeks ago she went to visit relatives in New Jersey.

In spite of the pleas of her family that she forget Richeson, Miss Edmands has continued steadfast in her devotion. The Edmands family requested the New Jersey relatives to try to divert her mind, but she will listen to no pleas and continues to think of Richeson.

Detectives from the district attorney's office and from the Rev. Mr. Richeson's lawyers began yesterday an investigation of the talesmen selected in Boston for the Richeson jury. The character of the men and their histories will be gone over with the greatest care.

Arrangements for the trial were partially effected yesterday by an order from the chief justice of the superior court that the greater portion of the fourth floor of the courthouse be reserved for the proceedings and that only counsel, jury, witnesses and newspaper representatives be admitted.

The trial will be held in what is known as the fifth civil session of the superior court, while another courtroom near by will be devoted to witnesses and smaller rooms to press and telegraph operators.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Carter of Cambridge, with whom Richeson boarded, were summoned into the district attorney's office yesterday by a police inspector, acting upon a rumor that they expected to leave for the South before the trial, although wanted as witnesses.

RUSSIAN COURTS FOR PERSIANS FORESHADOWED

Iron Repression of "Revolt" is Program
Outlined by the Novoe Vremya.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 29.—The appointment of a Russian governor and chief of police for the city of Tabriz in Persia and the assumption by the Russians of the financial control of municipal affairs there, together with the institution of exclusively Russian courts of law, is foreshadowed in the semi-official Novoe Vremya.

"Punishment will be meted out to the Persians," it says. "This is not the most difficult problem to be solved. A task which is more complicated and equally important is the introduction into Persia by Russian authority of a severe and firm, but just, administration. The Russians must remember the bloody week of Dec. 25 and stay the advance on the Russian troops not only by the establishment of an orderly system, not only by fear, but by gratitude."

Wholesale arrests and trials by court-martial of participants in the attacks on the Russian troops are to take place, while the constitutionalists are to be disarmed and stern measures taken for the re-establishment of order in the northern parts of Persia, where many of the towns are already occupied by Russian troops, including Enzeli, Resht, Julfa and Tabriz.

MAN HERE 20,000 YEARS AGO.

British Columbia Archaeologist Has Skeleton Belonging to That Time.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 29.—The American Philological association and the Archaeological institute of America opened their joint convention here Wednesday. Prominent educators from all parts of the United States and Canada, and a number from Europe, are attending. Some interesting addresses were made. In a paper on "Neolithic Man in British Columbia," Charles Hill-Tout of Abbotsford, British Columbia, described a skeleton recently found in that country. This skeleton, he said, indicates that research is no closer to a knowledge of where civilization began than it was fifty years ago, and it cannot be claimed for Egypt that it is the cradle of civilization. Describing the skull of the skeleton, Mr. Hill-Tout said that it belonged to a more than ordinary long-headed race. The skeleton, he said, was not less than 20,000 years old and until its discovery the investigations carried on by the Archaeological institute had extended back only 5,000 years.

TRUST PLAN GORDON'S

English Peer Advised Beef Combination

TESTIMONY GIVEN BY VEEDER

For the Prosecution—Plan for a $923,000,000 Concern—More Compacts and Agreements Are Shown.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—A. P. Veeder, attorney for Swift & Co., continued his absorbing story of the inside workings of the Chicago meat packers yesterday, when the trial of the ten indicted men was resumed before United States Judge George A. Carpenter.

"Was the final report of the appraisers and expert accountants on the value of the tangible property of the promoters of the big merger ever made?" asked special examiner A. P. Veeder at the opening of the morning session.

"The reports were not completed until after the big merger had failed and each member received a report of its own business," replied Mr. Veeder.

"Where were the meetings held at which plans for the big merger were discussed?"

"Mostly at my office, but at times we met at the homes of the principals."

"Who attended those meetings?"

"Various representatives of the packing interests. J. Ogden Armour did not come often, but was represented by Arthur Meeker, P. A. Valentine or Attorney Knauthoff. Gustavus F. Swift, Louis F. Swift and Edward F. Swift represented Swift & Co.; Michael and Edward Cudahy appeared for the Cudahy interests, and Edward and Ira Morris represented Morris & Co.," replied Mr. Veeder.

"When was the subject of the big packing merger first suggested?"

"Early in 1902. Gustavus F. Swift first mentioned it to me. Lord Penrose Gordon, an Englishman who had been prominent in merging corporations both in England and this country, had met G. F. Swift and suggested that the packing companies of the country be combined. A meeting was called in May, 1902, at which the subject was considered."

"All the packing interests were represented at that meeting. In those days the consolidation of corporations was a popular fad. In these days it is considered a fallacy," replied the witness.

"Was there no agreement made by the Chicago packers for a merger prior to May 31, 1902?" asked Mr. Butler.

"Not to my knowledge."

The witness then described the negotiations which led to the purchase by the combination of several packing companies.

SHE LIKES TO RIDE.

Handsome Woman Spent 36 Hours in Trolley Car.

Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 29.—A handsome, well-dressed woman was arrested by the Des Moines police after she had ridden on a Des Moines-Perry Interurban car for nearly a day and a half. She is held at the police station, where it is said an inquiry as to her sanity may be conducted.

The woman baffles all efforts to find out who she is. She boarded a car on Tuesday morning and remained on it until late at night. Wednesday morning she again was a passenger and the Interurban men appealed to the police. The woman made no trouble and seemed to have plenty of money.

MRS. VERMILYA ARRAIGNED.

Pleads Not Guilty to Killing Chicago Policeman.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—Too feeble to lift her head, Mrs. Louise Vermilya on a cot in the county hospital yesterday pleaded not guilty to the charge of murdering Policeman Arthur Bissonette with arsenic.

Because of her condition, she was not taken to the courtroom, Judge Kersten convening court in the hospital.

ed like a blacksmith's bellows. That made her feel more spoony still. They were sleighing at the time, and somehow her hand collided with one of his under the robes. Touch—a good conductor of love—broke her up. He begged her to run away with him and get married. She hesitated, then said she didn't see exactly how she could. He urged her, and she told him if he would be at the usual rendezvous the next day with the sleigh she would meet him and come to a decision. He persuaded her to leave her decision in a note placed in their "postoffice" in a thick.

She cried all that night. All the butterfly had gone out of her under a case of real love. In the morning she yielded to temptation. She resolved to elope with the countryman. She wrote him to that effect, conveying the note to their exchange letter box herself. In the evening just before dark she went to the rendezvous. The sleigh was not there. She waited awhile, then went home.

The next day she received a letter from the countryman telling her that he was her first rejected suitor—one whom she had well nigh forgotten and had not recognized in his humble apparel.

He had his revenge, and she was very mad. She returned to the city and, like a sensible girl, married the multimillionaire.

GIRL SEEKS REVENGE IN MAN'S CLOTHES

Was Lurking in Doorway With a Long Knife Waiting For Man When Arrested.

New York, Dec. 29.—Muffled in a man's overcoat, a dark suit of clothes and a pair of man's boots, Annie D. Ominici, a pretty 17-year-old Italian girl, was arrested on First avenue Wednesday evening between One Hundred and Ninth and One Hundred and Tenth streets. She carried a long-bladed, dangerous looking knife.

At the station house she told a story that sent the police on the hunt for a man named Genaro Staracio, who formerly worked in a horse clipping establishment run by the girl's father, at First avenue and One Hundred and Ninth street.

The girl said she was lured to New Haven by the man by means of a fake telegram from her mother and that he kept her a prisoner there for 28 days in a room without windows. Finally she escaped and came back to New York.

Staracio visited Annie again several days ago at the factory. He demanded that she support him. Annie promised the man she would give him money on Saturday. Wednesday she went to the Harlem court and asked for a warrant. She was told to point him out to a patrolman and he would be arrested.

The little Italian girl determined on a quicker and more certain method of avenging her wrongs. In the evening she slipped noiselessly into her father's room and put on his garments. Then she armed herself with the knife and silently left the house.

While she was tracking the accused man her plan was foiled by a patrolman, and he said that the girl wept bitterly when she realized that revenge had been snatched from her.

REVENGE IS SWEET

By ELMER WINSTON

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

She was an incorrigible flirt. At last, having declined a number of suitors, she became engaged to a multimillionaire, and her mother determined that she should not have a chance to throw over the opportunity. The girl was sent into the country on a plea of ill health in the dead of winter to remain there till a week before the wedding day.

An aunt agreed to take her to her summer residence, open it and live there with her during the season of her captivity. There were plenty of young men about in summer, but now there was not one within fifty miles except a few countrymen. The January winds were blowing cold, and she sat all day reading novels or doing fancy work, occasionally turning to look through the window at the bleak day.

There was a little lake a few hundred yards distant, just outside the walls of her prison grounds. One cold night it was frozen over, and the next morning the sun shone bright, and the air was still and full of ozone.

A man was skating on the lake. She arose, dressed herself in a becoming skating costume, took up a pair of skates and went to the lake. Putting on her skates, she went on the ice, at first timidly; then, gathering confidence, she sailed off, graceful as a swan.

The man, evidently a farm hand, cut figure eight, did the Dutch roll and all manner of stunts. The girl swayed her skirts gracefully to one side, then to the other, as she skated. It was a case of country boy showing off before city girl and city girl before country boy. Then she purposely fell on the ice and lay there till he came and picked her up.

"Are you hurt, miss?"

Where had she heard a voice like that? She looked up into the young man's face, and behind a stubble beard of five or six days' growth she saw something that reminded her of some one she had seen before.

"Not much," she said.

He was turning away when she struggled or pretended to struggle with a lame ankle. "I fear I must ask you to help me off the ice," she said.

She rested heavily on his strong arm as she shambled to the shore, and when she got there he took from under his neck an enormous woolen comforter and, folding it, put it on the ground for her to sit on. Then he asked what else he could do for her. Her ankle continued to pain her—so she said—and she would neither try to get home nor try to skate. The consequence was that he stood on the verge of the ice cutting stunts and talking to her. After awhile she took off her skates and limped home—that is, she limped till he was hidden by the trees in the grounds of her prison, then she walked as well as ever.

It was the beginning of the ice season, and for several weeks there was good skating. There is nothing attractive to a city girl in a raw countryman, though this one was raw only in appearance, and, having an original mind and a pleasant way with him, he gradually threw a singular spell over her. Perhaps it was because he was the only man about. The lake was crescent shaped, the far horn of the crescent being hidden by a hill. Fearing her aunt would interfere, she met the countryman at the farther horn. The first thing she knew she was experiencing a singular sensation she had never felt before.

Then came sleighing, and the countryman met her by appointment where no one in the prison would see with a sleigh and a pair of horses—he said he had obtained leave to exercise them for their good—and the two rode side by side to the jingle of bells. So the winter passed, and one day she awoke to the fact that the sleighbells would soon be replaced by wedding bells and she would be given over to a man she didn't want.

By and by she got to talking spoony with the countryman and told him her story. He heaved a sigh which sound-

LESS THAN 12 CONTROL

The Bank Deposits of the Country, Says Untermeyer

75 PER CENT IN THEIR HANDS

Dominates the Stock Market—New York
Lawyer Arraigns Bankers in an Address on the "Money Trust."

New York, Dec. 29.—"Less than a dozen men in the city of New York control at least 75 per cent. of all the deposits in the leading trust companies and national banks here and in their allied institutions all over the country," said Samuel Untermeyer Wednesday night in an address on the so-called "Money Trust" at the finance forum in the Y. M. C. A. building in West Fifty-eighth street.

Mr. Untermeyer, who won fame as an exposé of high finance in Wall street, has been mentioned as chief inquirer of a congressional committee to investigate the "money trust."

The title of his address was, "Is There a Money Trust?" He answered this question by saying that no definite opinion of money power exists, but there is a close and well defined "community of interest" among the men who dominate the financial destinies of our country, and who wield fabulous powers over the fortunes of persons other than themselves through their control of corporate funds, which does just as well.

"The stock market and commodity markets of the country are at the mercy of this small body of men who thus control the deposits of these banks and trust companies. They can, at will, put money rates up and down, make and unmake "bull" markets and "bear" markets, create and compose panics, prevent new enterprises and destroy existing ones by reducing or curtailing credits, and in a thousand ways rule the fortunes and destinies of the business men and smaller financial institutions of the country."

DIX DEMANDS DOTY
RESIGN IMMEDIATELY

Charges the Post Office of New York
Has Been Grossly Incompetent.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29.—Gov. Dix has asked for the immediate resignation of Dr. Alvan H. Doty as health officer of the port of New York, a position he has held since 1895. Dr. Doty's term expired last January. His removal was recommended recently by Charles N. Bulger, the commissioner appointed by the governor to investigate the management and affairs of the office.

In his letter to Dr. Doty, made public yesterday, the governor reviews the report of Commissioner Bulger, who declared the history of the business administration of the state's quarantine "is replete with evidence of gross incompetency and inexcusable negligence." The governor says the evidence "shows a condition of squalor and uncleanness in the rooms where immigrants were kept that shocks one's sense of decency and makes one ashamed of his country."

LITTLE PIGS MILKED THE COW.

Now the Farmer Eats Pork and Drinks Milk, Too.

New York, Dec. 29.—Milked dry, John Robinson's brown cow has returned to the barn at Kreischerville, S. L., at feeding time every evening for a week. "Somebody's been milking Brownie and me and I'm going to catch the robber," said the farmer. So Wednesday afternoon he hid in a clump of bushes near the cow's pasture. He had a club and a carving knife.

As milking time drew on two little pigs ran into the field. They were Tom and Jerry, Robinson's prize pigs. They grunted and approached Brownie with hoglike assurance. One suckling pig was served for dinner in the Robinson home last evening and the other will be sent to market.
